

Career Opportunity – User Experience Consultant

Do you want to learn user experience design from the best in the industry? This is an entry-level opportunity to join UX Connections as a user experience consultant and take the first steps to becoming a digital professional.

UX Consultant, London, UK. Full-Time.

This salaried position is available immediately for the right candidate. We're looking for a curious, dedicated and inventive researcher and designer to join our creative team. You'll be joining 'on the ground floor' of our young company and will be pivotal to its future success. Please send your CV with a short covering letter describing briefly why you're interested in this challenge, to careers@uxconnections.com with the subject line "UX Consultant"

Background

UX Connections is a digital design consultancy founded in March 2013 and is the project of Chris Sainsbury, a UX Consultant and Professor at New York University who has worked in London and New York over the past 10 years. We conduct research in to the way people use digital products (apps and websites) and design beautiful solutions that work for them.

The role

The role of user experience consultant is split in to two areas – research and design. Your responsibilities will include:

- Researching the end-users of a digital product through a mixture of primary and secondary research
- Creation of research deliverables such as heuristic evaluations, competitor reviews and personas
- Deriving insight from this research and translating it in to design opportunities, interface considerations and new ideas for content and features
- Working within specialised client teams on-site at their offices, collaborating with complementary roles such as project manager, product owner, visual and graphic designer, and business analyst, as well as developers
- Creating specification documents such as wireframes, user journeys, feature maps and interactive prototypes and communicating these to stakeholders using techniques such as presentations and workshops
- Being a core member of our team, and adding value every day

About you

You'll be an enthusiastic and hard working personality – someone who wants to do the best work, be innovative and inspired all at the same time. Fundamentally, you're a designer who looks at the world (and particularly digital products) with a questioning eye and wonders why they were made the way they were, and for what audiences. You may have just finished a psychology, design or computer science degree, and ideally will have a basic knowledge of HTML, CSS, Photoshop, Illustrator and other technologies.